

The first massive collaboration resource for tourism businesses.

Now it's easy to collaborate, communicate and share with government officials and industry colleagues.

TourismROI has brought together government officials, industry leaders, business operators, investors and more in 12,000 destinations around the world, allowing them to exchange information in one convenient online location.

Tourism industry players (public and private) are the nucleus of this online community, allowing you to share information, communicate in real time and voice your thoughts on industry trends, events and issues. With TourismROI, you can:

- Communicate in real time with your colleagues, peers, government officials and industry partners, keeping them informed of your business, opinions and concerns.
- Register your business so potential customers and partners can locate your business and learn about your products, services and leadership.
- Generate automated alerts for colleagues interested in keeping up with your activities.

Register free online to join the world's largest and most comprehensive network for tourism industry collaboration.
